

Share of States' Students With Access to Tutoring Via Federal Covid-Relief Aid

Map is based on a FutureEd analysis of a March 15, 2022, compilation by the data services firm Burbio of Covid-relief spending plans released by 3,375 school districts in 50 states representing roughly 64% of the nation's public school students. It includes 42 states where at least 20 percent of the statewide student enrollment is captured in the Burbio district database. States in gray do not meet that threshold. Charter schools and other LEA types are not included.